"DEACON" SCOTT HUMBLER YANKS--3 TO 0

CASTOFF COMES BACK, HURLING GIANTS TO WIN

Pitcher Turned Loose by Major Clubs Allows Yanks But Four Hits

HOYT HIT VERY HARD

Yankee Pitcher Hurls Loose Ball and Is Finally Taken From Box

Polo Grounds, Oct. 6.—The Giants played their ancient foe, the Yankees, with a coating of whitewash this afternoon and won their second victory over the American league champions by a score of 3 to 0. "Deacon" Scott, resurrected and rejuvenated after all the major league clubs had regarded his pitching arm as doomed beyond repair, stood out on the hurling mound and made the Yankees look foolish. He had speed galore mixed with fine curves. Hoyt pitched a loose game for the Yankees.

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 6.—The midwest manager, Miller Huggins, shuffled the deck of the Yankees, pitching staff this afternoon and then led with his third ace, Waite Hoyt in hopes of winning a first victory in the world's series from the Giants who are already in the proud possession of one game. Manager John McGraw looked with critical eye over the Giant hurlers but gave no intimation for his choice for hurling duty until game time.

"I have McQuillan and Scott both ready to start," said he, "and don't forget that Rosey Ryan looked pretty good in there in the first game. I am perfectly satisfied with the way my team is going and our pitching has been good."

Miller Huggins will probably follow his fixed program of starting his five star pitching staff in order, unless the Giants upset his plans by knocking some hurler unexpectedly into the discard. Huggins' plan contemplates Hoyt today, Blonder Carl Mays tomorrow and Sam Jones on Sunday. Bush, with a five day rest will then be fit for Monday.

"I am not worrying over my pitching," said Huggins, "but the batting slump the club is in. If we can come out of it we should win this series."

McGraw Changes Mind

Though the crowd has been big at the games, with every seat taken the contests have been marked by the absence of the earlier rushes to the ball park and today was no exception.

After McQuillan had warmed up, Manager McGraw suddenly called him to the bench and sent out Deacon Scott to warm up. McGraw then decided to pitch Scott as he showed to be in better form.

Manager McGraw said: "I was going to start McQuillan but as he was not feeling just right and was not likely to show to the best advantage, I decided to start Scott."

The band played the Star Spangled Banner and the crowd rose to its feet while the players stood with bared heads.

ENDURANCE AIR RECORDS ARE BROKEN

Lieutenants Macready and Kelly Stay Aloft for More Than 26 Hours

THEY USE METAL PLANE

Previous Record was Slightly Less Than One Established in San Diego

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 6.—What was regarded by army officers here as the official record for sustained flight in the monoplane T-2. At that time they had been aloft over San Diego slightly more than 22 hours and still they circled through the air.

The T-2 was still aloft at 6 o'clock this morning. It had remained in the air 24 hours.

All aviation endurance records have been smashed by Lieutenants John A. Macready and Oakley Kelly of the United States army, who at 8:30 o'clock today had been aloft in their monoplane T-2 for 26 hours and 34 minutes. The previous record was 26 hours, 19 minutes and 35 seconds.

BREAK ALL RECORDS.

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 6.—All aviation endurance records have been smashed by Lieutenants John A. Macready and Oakley Kelly of the United States army, who at 8 o'clock this morning had been aloft in their monoplane T-2 exactly 26 hours and four minutes.

USES METAL MONOPLANE.

New York, Oct. 6.—The World record for sustained flight in a heavier-than-air flying machine is held by Edward Stinson and Lloyd Bertand, who on December 30, 1921, remained aloft above Roosevelt field, Mineola, N. Y., for 26 hours, 19 minutes and 35 seconds. It was stated today by aviation authorities. Stinson used the all-metal monoplane J.L-6. The previous record was held by two French fliers, Lucien Boussout and Jean Bernard, who in June, 1920, stayed in the air 24 hours, 19 minutes and 2 seconds.

It was stated that the San Diego flight had probably broken a record for United States army aviators.

HEAVY RAINS BRING RELIEF TO FIRE ZONES

Blaze About Cobalt, Canada, Is Quenched by Down-pour

MAINE THREATENED

North of Jackman Fires Start in Cut Over Land

UPSETS FORECAST.

Marked changes in atmospheric pressure across the country East of the Mississippi upset the dope in the weather bureau today, and showers generally in the Eastern states will shortly break the long drought that has gripped most of the country.

Weather bureau officials were taken with surprise completely, they said, when the sudden change was observed. Disturbances which will provide the parched countryside with refreshing showers originated in Northern Canada. It was explained, where there are few weather stations.

Cobalt, Ont., Oct. 6.—A heavy rain this morning had virtually quenched the forest fires about the city which took a toll of possibly sixty lives and wiped the town of Halleybury and several smaller settlements, out of existence.

Thirty-three bodies have been recovered in the scorched wreckage that a week ago was Halleybury. Many more persons are missing.

Train loads of tents, food, bedding and other supplies are arriving now to aid the 5000 homeless who have wandered into Cobalt.

NO HALTING OF FIRES.

Jackman, Maine, Oct. 6.—There was no halting today of the forest fires which started in cut over land north of here three days ago and raged through the piles of slash, forcing woodsmen and their families to flee.

The flames have made deep inroads through Aroostook county forests eastward along the North shore to the vicinity.

Lumbermen driven into town by the dense smoke say that the damage will be heavy. Great quantities of pulpwood already cut and piled were threatened with destruction today.

(By the Associated Press)

Washington, Oct. 6.—The United States weather bureau saw no immediate prospect today for a break in the protracted drought which has gripped a greater portion of the country, high temperatures were expected to continue at least until tomorrow night.

Until the weather elements—winds and barometric pressure—get back to natural course, meteorologically speaking, weather bureau officials say the present dry spell will continue. The air, they explain is showing a sluggishness and lack of movement which is barring the inswep of moisture bearing air over the country.

The menace of forest fires, already causing huge damage and threatening additional loss of life in Canada, in addition to areas aggregating about 100 square miles now burning in northern Minnesota, is by far the most feared consequence of the drought.

New York, Oct. 6.—Edward Hodnett, charged with homicide after the shooting of Mrs. Lillian Schmidt and Bernard Rosner, a week ago, was at liberty today on request of prosecuting attorneys, who stated the grand jury had failed to find evidence to warrant an indictment.

Mrs. Schmidt and Rosner were killed in Hodnett's room, apparently both the victims of a single revolver bullet. Hodnett surrendered to the police the day after the bodies were found. His story was that an automatic pistol which he was examining in the presence of his guests was accidentally discharged.

BISMARCK MAN GIVES REPORT OF COMMISSION

C. L. Young Tells Conference At Devils Lake of Work Done by State Body

MAKES SUGGESTIONS

Code Commission Urges Legislative Policies to Better Children

That the North Dakota Children's Code Commission will present a complete program for safeguarding the children of the state to the coming session was the announcement of President C. L. Young of Bismarck in making a report of the progress of the work to the Conference of Social Work at Devils Lake today.

Mr. Young took up the work of the Commission in detail for the two years it has been investigating the needs of the state children, and also presented a statement of the work which has been done in the interest of child welfare since President Roosevelt called the first conference in Washington in January, 1909.

"The laws until recently prevalent in the several American states have been archaic," Mr. Young said in the beginning of his address. "Under them, children were dealt with as if they were adults. Humanitarian consideration demanded a change. The proper supervision of child life has been found a worth while economy. The measures now proposed to promote child welfare are preventative in character. They forestall heavy budgets for disciplinary, reformatory and punitive institutions. More than that they are constructive in that they add to the comfort, happiness and success of the individual child and promote the well being of society."

Explains Idea Growth

Mr. Young then went on to explain the growth from the Roosevelt children's meeting to the establishment of the Children's Bureau in Washington ten years later in 1919. North Dakota legislature ordered the establishment of the Children's Code Commission in 1920 and the commission at present is made up of the following representatives of organizations:

State Conference of Social Work, Henrietta Lund, Bismarck.

State Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. May Flemington Strand, Ellendale.

State Medical Association, A. J. McCannell, Minot.

State Bar Association, C. L. Young, Bismarck.

State Federation of Labor, Mrs. Margaret Frantz, Grand Forks.

State Educational Association, Mr. C. L. Vigness, Mayville.

State Minimum Wage Department, Miss Myrtle Schowille, Bismarck.

"The Child Welfare problems in this state differ from those in many of the states because of the rural character and the sparseness of population," declared Mr. Young in his presentation. "The largest city has a population of 10,000."

JUST HARMLESS SNAKE FOUND AT CAPITOL

A lot of unnecessary screams were uttered last Saturday at the state capitol when a snake was discovered in the office of the attorney general, according to Russell Reed of the state historical society. The snake, a small one, was pronounced a rattlesnake by W. F. Reko and Charles Smith, both of whom have seen plenty of rattlesnakes west of the river. Mr. Reed examined the snake and to day reports that it was not a rattlesnake, but a hog-nose snake, entirely harmless and quite common around the capitol grounds.

A second hog-nose snake was killed in front of the capitol yesterday. The snake gets its name from its peculiarly shaped head, and snout which is like that of a hog. It is commonly called adder. Mr. Reed said, because when frightened its jaws are puffed out like those of an adder. They're breathing easier around the capitol since the new ver diet has been issued.

AT THE MOVIES

CAPITOL

Twenty-two wolf-dogs were engaged for the production of "A Virgin's Sacrifice," which will be shown at Capitol Theatre tonight and tomorrow. These dogs were expensive, and their combined salary for a week was greater than that of any member of the company, save the star.

None of the dogs is vicious, taken by themselves. They make great friends, but when in a pack they fight like tigers. For ordinary picture purposes only six dogs are used on a dog-sled, but for this picture Vitagraph used at least ten in every dog team and some had as fifteen dogs.

In one important scene a pack of ten dogs is used, and when the dogs were in the pack they began to fight viciously. A member of the company, Nick Thompson by name, was bitten through the hand in an effort to separate the pack for picture purposes.

"A Virgin's Sacrifice" offers Corinne Griffith as pleasing a role as any she has ever had in her long and successful career in her screen work. She is ably directed by Webster Campbell, and the story

DRINKS BOOZE, IS ROBBED

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 6.—Alex Nelson, a laborer of Moorhead, Minn., was beaten over the head, kicked into insensibility and robbed of $125 about about eight last evening in a building in Island Park where he had gone with a chance acquaintance to drink some liquor which his friends had just purchased for him, he told police.

MEN BLIND TO WOMAN'S SUFFERING

How many men, think you, have any idea of the pain endured by women in their own household, and often without a murmur? They have no patience when the overworked wife and mother begins to get pale, have headaches, backaches, faint spells, or is melancholy and cannot sleep. There is help for every woman in this condition, as evidenced by the many population of less than twenty-five thousand. The standards of child welfare have applications here as much as elsewhere, but the legislation through which these standards are to be given vitality must be adapted to the existing considerations and conditions here."

The speaker then outlined the methods by which the members of the Commission had secured information not only by their own efforts in conference with people of the state handling children's problems, but also through the survey of the Children's Bureau and the work of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene.

What Committee Urges

Mr. Young then presented in detail a report under the following headings:

The standards which should be recognized and embraced in our legislation and administrative policy.

Conditions found to exist within our state.

Legislative and administrative policies recommended to meet the conditions existing in the light of the accepted standards.

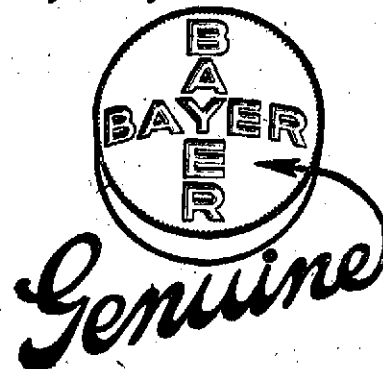

In proposing legislation, the commission does not suggest anything untried, novel or bizarre," concluded Mr. Young. "Most of the proposals relate to subjects upon which legislation has been enacted, but there has been rapid development in the child welfare movement. Many experiments have been tried. Experience has shown much of the earlier legislation obsolete. To bring our state abreast of the times on its provision for our childhood we have re-drafted some of our earlier laws and believe that in their amended forms they will prove more effective and helpful."

"Regulatory measures are recommended as the other means of vitalizing laws existing and suggested. While state supervision of child welfare agencies may at first blush appear like an intrusion upon the local government which we so highly cherish it will be found that in reality the law contemplates the supervision of child welfare activities by the local welfare boards. Hence local administration after all will be assured while at the same time there is a guaranty of that efficiency which flows from the direction of a central authority."

TO EXTEND RELIEF
Washington, Oct. 6.—American Red Cross relief to refugees from the Turkish military drive in the Near East is to be further extended as a result of latest reports to National headquarters here. Orders have been cabled to the Parish branch of the society to expend $50,000 for blankets and clothing and $25,000 for medical supplies to be sent to the stricken region.

According to latest estimates received by the Red Cross, there are 100,000 refugees in Athens and 40, 000 in Saloniki, with thousands pouring into these two cities, from the territory over-run by the Turks. The greatest need reported is for blankets, clothing, medical supplies and food.

Third Generation is Using Syrup Pepsin

No other Laxative can replace Dr. Caldwell's in the confidence of those who use it

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

THERE are thousands of healthy, robust young men and women who have never in all their lives taken any other laxative for constipation than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Their parents were given it by their parents; the grandparents are using it today. It is the one laxative ideally suited to all the family, safe for the little ones, effective for the elderly people, who are constantly forced to take a laxative because the intestinal muscles are weakening, find increased dosage unnecessary. This wonderful constipation remedy has been used continuously for 30 years, and over 10 million bottles are now sold annually, the largest selling family laxative in the world. The cost averages but a cent a dose. Every druggist sells it, and under a guarantee to do as claimed or your money will be refunded.

Millions of carefully conducted homes are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Mr. J. B. Belk of Shaw, Miss., relies on it entirely to keep his children in health, and Mrs. Catherine Connolly of Jersey City, N. J., declares that not only herself but all her neighbors and friends use it and tell others about it. There is scarcely a day that someone in a family does not need it for constipation, flatulence, auto-intoxication, biliousness, intestinal poisoning, headaches, colic and cramps, and to break up fevers and colds.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientifically-balanced compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. The formula is on the package. As the popularity of this natural vegetable laxative increases, the public discards the harsher physics like calomel, coltar in candy form, salt waters and powders. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin empties the bowels more cleanly and without any danger.

BIRDS FLY SOUTH
Jack Frost is beginning to get in his work up north in Canada. Birds soon fly south. These migratory flights are mysteries of science.
How do they know when to start and where to go and how to find their way?
Bird migration is a very old habit, an inborn instinct which was developed ages ago, and which manifests itself year after year in a uniform manner and without any remarkable close conformity to immediate conditions.
This is Prof. J. Arthur Thomson's explanation in his "Outline of Science." In other words, the annual southward flight of birds is a habit developed gradually through thousands of years.
One scientific explanation is that the Great Ice Age, when glaciers moved down from the north, drove birds south. When the ice slowly retreated, they flew back to their old homes in warm summer, but returned to the new homes in winter.
One guess is as good as another.

Ever wonder how fast birds travel when they migrate south? Some of them reach a speed of more than 50 miles an hour. When weary, as you have noticed, they camp for a rest—"hang around" a certain locality for a day or so.
Ducks travel 44 to 59 miles an hour and small songbirds 20 to 37 miles an hour, according to Colonel Meinertzhagen's observations. The bird named the "swift" has been known to pass an airplane doing 68 miles an hour, and reaches a speed of more than 100 miles when flying with all its energy and skill.
Hunters now oiling their shotguns, soon will be shooting wild geese and ducks.
The geese travel in a sort of V formation, one side longer than the other, like a broken wishbone. Shoot the leader and the formation closes up, the next bird in line taking the fallen leader's place.
Shoot the leader of some kinds of wild ducks and say the Ojibway Indians, the flock flutters to the ground, preferably a swamp, and presently rises after much chattering in which they seem to elect a new leader.
This is the sort of adventure, romance and mystery that flies over our heads and exists all around us in nature. And yet some people frequently yawn, bored with life, and complain that they can find nothing interesting.

PRINCES
While the ex-kaiser still rolls in wealth, other German princes are hard up. They hammer loudly at the door of the pensions office.
A general's pension is applied for by Rupprecht, ex-crown prince of Bavaria, George, duke of Saxe-Meiningen, claims he is eligible for an inspector-general's pension.
Prince Oscar of Prussia applies for a brigade commander's pension, also asks the salary due him for the last quarter of 1918. He gets the latter, in an envelope addressed to "Mr. Oscar von Hohenzollern." How are the mighty fallen!

HYPOCRISY
Mole, in his memoirs, says Napoleon never wrote to his children without wetting his paper with huge tears.
Napoleon told Mole: "Don't suppose that I have not as tender a heart as any man. I am a kindly man."
Imagine that, from one of the most heartless men that ever lived. Napoleon either was an arch-hypocrite or he kept himself hypnotized. At that, his opinion of himself was as close to the truth as the average man's self-esteem. All men are vain. Vanity, self-preservation and reproduction are man's guiding motives.

NAPOLEON
The first volume of Count Mole's long-awaited memoirs is published in Paris. Its most striking point is this description of Napoleon at the age of 44:
"While walking to and fro and talking to me, he showed signs of fatigue. He stopped and leaned against the billiard table; rolled the billiard balls with his hand; and seemed ready involuntarily to fall asleep."
Napoleon said that old age begins at 30. Take heed, young men who are wasting your twenties.

WINES
Paris reports that 1922 claret is excellent and will take its place with famous vintages. Not since 1900 has such honor been claimed for any year's run of claret.
Wine connoisseurs, however, doubt that the 1922 claret will be as excellent as in 1878 and 1893, the years of the most wonderful claret ever bottled.
Alas! It is enough to make the old home brew down in the cellar turn to vinegar, for shame.

HOME-BREW
If you made blackberry wine this year, how did it turn out? Bitter, probably. Something was wrong with the berries this season. Weather last year was ideal for ripening of juicy blackberries. Not so, in 1922, most places.
Even chemists are unable to explain what's wrong. It is when you take up the chemistry of wine-making that you realize there are things in nature that cannot be accounted for by natural laws.

KAISER
The ex-kaiser's personal wealth still is so great that the Prussian ministry of finance, commissioned to make a settlement between the Hohenzollerns and Prussia, is unable to estimate the value of it all.
In and around Berlin alone, Bill claims 53 palaces, mansions and estates. He owns property all over Germany and holds a stack of mortgages. All this, logically, should be confiscated and turned into the reparations fund.
Fall is the season we find moths got fat on moth balls.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

COSGRAVE THE RIGHT CHOICE
The election of Cosgrave to the Presidency of the Irish Parliament looks like a good choice. He is not without idealism, but has common sense and stout good faith. And steady good faith and stalwart common sense are what above all now are needed to establish the Free State and save Ireland from anarchy.

Idealists are essential in the scheme of things. They start a movement when nobody else starts. They plant, often on stony soil. They carry on, when everybody else is engaged in sordid things. But the idealists do not build although they induce the undertaking.
Who out of the despair of Italy and against the supineness of opinion raised the hope of liberty and instigated defiance to Austria? That prince of idealists, Mazzini. And who achieved what was military impossible in Sicily and Naples, when practical men believed the Italians to be crushed forever? That idealist of action Garibaldi. But who, cold and sagacious, patient and tenacious, opportunist and compromiser, creative statesman, took advantage of Mazzini's and Garibaldi's work, retrieved their mistakes and achieved Italian unity and independence? Count Cavour, realist.

Mazzini and Garibaldi clung to the Republic. The Kingdom of Italy under the House of Savoy, Cavour saw to be the practicable solution.
Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins, evinced hard common sense and showed statesmanlike perception of reality. Cosgrave is their true successor. A republic is no more possible in Ireland than it was in Italy in 1859, or in Germany in 1866.

Iceland cannot successfully disregard her obligation to the British Empire. The obligation is a fact, however hateful to minds like those of the Valerians. Such matters of choice but of position, past, present and future. Woes in the past have grown out of abuse of the mutual relationship just as in the case of the relationship of America to Britain. The thing to do is not to deny the relationship, which is like denying the street in which one lives, but to promote readjustment.

The English-speaking peoples, and that includes Ireland, must compose their differences, iron out their complications, manage their co-ordination, for the sake of themselves, for the sake of the world, for the sake of civilization and humanity. The Twentieth Century situation is such that the future depends for its weal or woe on a certain solidarity of the English-speaking world. — Minneapolis Journal.

EXPLAIN "METAMORPHOSIS"
But, as everyone knows, the revolutionary theory can be used as a basis for materialistic teachings in schools and colleges, ruling out the supernatural, and aiming, indeed, claiming, to explain the universe on a wholly materialistic basis. That is why some religious people fear the doctrine of evolution. Instead, however, of hurling invectives, why do not the champions of the churches who need ammunition for their batteries inform themselves of the truths of nature, that they may be able to show in what respects the materialistic advocates of evolution are mistaken. In the insect world, if anywhere, these truths are to be found. The astounding facts of insect metamorphosis are well told and illustrated in Professor George H. Carpenter's remarkable book, "Insect Transformations," to be had in the public library. These transformations, involving the creation of new and different digestive organs, the change from simple to compound eyes, the change from chewing jaws to sucking proboscis, the growth of wings from almost invisible "imaginal discs" are so utterly miraculous that no theories of adaptation to environment, "theory of the fittest" or other well known evolutionary doctrines account for them. The author is not arguing for or against evolution, simply telling the story of the insects from nature's own book of life. And that book is the final authority in such an argument. Let the disputants familiarize themselves with it.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A THOUGHT
Now therefore, keep thy sorrow to thyself, and bear with a good courage that which hath befallen thee.—II Ecdras 10:15.
Go, bury thy sorrow, the world hath its share;
Go bury it deeply, go hide it with care.
Hearts growing a-weary with heavier woe
Now droop 'mid the darkness; go, comfort them, go!
—Harriet B. Stowe.

MELANCHOLY DAYS

The FLAMING JEWEL
ROBERT W. CHAMBERS
© 1922 GEORGE F. DORAN COMPANY
BEGIN HERE TODAY
The battle for the possession of the Flaming Jewel, which began two years ago when the gem was stolen from the royal jewel casket of the new kingdom of ESTHONIA, now centered in the Adirondacks where MIKE CLINCH lived by breaking every law. With Clinch lived his beautiful stepdaughter, the only good influence on his life, EVE STRAYER.
The Flaming Jewel was first stolen from the countess by QUINTANA, the great international thief. From him, in Paris, Mike Clinch stole the gem and brought it back to the Adirondacks. Now, at Clinch's camp, there arrived Quintana, seeking to regain the jewel, and also JAMES DARRAGH, who has sworn to restore the gem to the countess. Clinch stole the gem and brought it back to the Adirondacks. Now, at Clinch's camp, there arrived Quintana, seeking to regain the jewel, and also JAMES DARRAGH, who has sworn to restore the gem to the countess. Clinch stole the gem and brought it back to the Adirondacks. Now, at Clinch's camp, there arrived Quintana, seeking to regain the jewel, and also JAMES DARRAGH, who has sworn to restore the gem to the countess.

He was a swell gent, too, in full dress and silk hat and all like that, and a opy cloak and white kid gloves, and mustache and French beard.
"When they locked him up he stood stock still and lit a cigaret, as cool as ice. Then he began walkin' around looking for a way to get out; but there wasn't no way.
"Then he seen me and over he comes and talks English right away: 'Want to make a thousand francs, soldier?' sez he in a quick whisper. 'Go on,' sez I, 'show you dough?' Then Clinch went to get the Commission for to risk me, so he. 'If they find this parcel on me, I do twenty years in Noumea. Five years kills anybody out there.' 'What do you want I should do?' sez I, 'havin' no love for no cops, French or other.' 'Take this packet and stick it in your overcoat,' sez he. 'Go to 13 rue Quinze Octobre and give it to the concierge for Jose Quintana.' And he shoves the packet on me and a thousand-franc note.
"Then he grabs me sudden and pulls open my collar. God, he was strong.
"What's the matter with you?' says I. 'Lemme go or I'll mash you, mug flat.' 'Lemme see your identification disc,' he barks.
"Belin' in Paris for a bat, I had exchanged with my bunkie, Bill Hanson, 'Let him look, thinks I, and he reads Bill's check.
"If you fool me, says he, 'I'll folly ye and I'll do you in if takes the rest of my life. You understand?' 'Sure,' says I, me tongue in me check. 'Bong! Allez vous en!' says he.
"How the hell, sez I, 'do I get out of here?' 'You're a Yankee soldier. The Flies don't know you were in here. You go and kick on that door and make a holler.'
"So I done it good; and a cop opens and swears at me, but when he sees a Yankee soldier he lets me out, you bet."
Clinch smiled a thin smile, poured out three fingers of hooch.
"What else?" asked Smith quietly.
"Nothing much. I didn't go to no rue Quinze Octobre. But I don't never want to see that fella Quintana. I've been waiting till it's safe to tell—what was in that packet."
"Sell what?"
"What was in that packet," repeated Clinch thickly.
"What was in it?"
"Sparklers—since you're so noseey."
"Where do you keep them?" inquired Smith naively.
Clinch looked at him, very drunk: "None of your dinged business," he said very softly.
The dancing had become boisterous but not unseemly, although all the men had been drinking too freely. Smith closed the pantry bar at midnight, by direction of Eve. Now he came out into the ballroom and mixed affably with the company, even dancing with Harvey Chase's sister once—a slender, hoyden, all flushed and disheveled, with a tireless mania for dancing which seemed to intoxicate her.
She danced, danced, danced, accepting any partner offered. But Smith's skill enraptured her and refused to let him go when her beau, a late arrival, one Charlie Berry, slouched up to claim her.
Smith always trying to keep Clinch and Quintana's men in view took no part in the discussion; but Berry thought he was detaining Lily Chase and pushed him aside.
"Hold on, young man!" exclaimed Smith sharply. "Keep your hands to yourself. If your girl don't want to dance with you she doesn't have to."

dance with you she doesn't have to." Some of Quintana's gang came to listen. Berry glared at Smith. "Say," he said, "I seen you before somewhere. Wasn't you in Russia?" "What are you talking about?" "Yes, you was. You was an officer! What you doing at Clinch's?" "What's that?" growled Clinch, shoving his way forward and shouldering the crowd aside.
"Who's this man, Mike?" demanded Berry.
"Well, who do you think he is?" asked Clinch thickly.
"I think he's gettin' the goods on you, that's what I think," yelled Berry.
"G'wan home, Charlie," returned Clinch. "G'wan, all of you. The dance is over. Go peaceable, every one. Stop that fiddle!"
The music ceased. The dance was ended; they all understood that; but there was grumbling and demands for drinks.
Clinch, drunk but impassive, herded them through the door out into the starlight. There was scuffling horse-play, but no fighting.
The big Englishman, Harry Beck, asked for accommodations for his party over night.
"Now," said Clinch, "g'wan back to the Inn. I can't bother with you folks tonight." And as the others, Salzar, Georgiades, Piquet and Sanchez gathered about to insist, Clinch pushed them all out of doors in a mass.
"Get the hell out o' here!" he growled, and slammed the door.
He stood for a moment with head lowered, drunk, but apparently capable of reflection. Eye came from the melodeon and laid on slim hand on his arm.
"Go to bed, girlie," he said, not looking at her.
"No, also, dad."
"No... I got business with Hal Smith."
Passing Smith, the girl whispered: "You look out for him and undress him."
Smith nodded, gravely preoccupied with coming events, and nervously himself to meet them.
He had no gun. Clinch's big automatic bulged under his armpit.
When the girl had ascended the creaking stairs and her door, above, closed, Clinch walked unsteadily to the door, opened it, fished out his pistol.
"Come on out," he said without turning.
"Where?" inquired Smith.
Clinch turned, lifted his square head; and the deadly glare in his eyes left Smith silent.
"You comin'?"
"Sure," said Smith quietly.
But Clinch gave him no chance to close in; it was death even to swerve. Smith walked slowly into the starlight, ahead of Clinch, slowly forward in the luminous darkness.
"Keep going," came Clinch's quiet voice behind him. And, after they had entered the woods—"Bear to the right."
Smith knew now. The low woods were full of sink-holes. They were headed for the nearest one.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

Editor Tribune:
Probably all the other sportsmen who have hunted geese in North Dakota have had at one time or another the opportunity to select from a flock of the Canada geese one or more that have been very noticeable larger than the others. Many have been shot that would weigh 15 or more pounds. They were usually spoken of as the Big Gray Honker.
Arnhologists have for a number of years been working on the theory that there is or has been breeding, generally speaking, in North Dakota, a type of the Branta Canadensis that was distinct from the type described under that name. Early in the history of the United States, these birds were found on the Atlantic coast. So far as records have been kept none of the coast specimens have weighed over 12 pounds, usually 8 to 10 pounds.
The chief of the Biological Survey, Hon. E. M. Nelson, Washington, D. C., and others are anxious to get some specimens of these large geese. Any sportsman killing geese weighing over 18 pounds would confer a favor and add something of interest and value to the Arnhological students if they would send the specimens direct to Washington addressed as above, or to me, that they may be prepared for scientific study.
If any farmer having one or more of the Canada Geese, caught when young or raised in captivity, would send me word of the fact, I would be pleased to look them over to decide whether or not they would come within the desired size and weights. I would like to hear from sportsmen who have killed these extra large geese.
It would be greatly appreciated if newspaper men would give the above item as much publicity as possible.

CHEAPER POSTAL RATES
Rome, Oct. 6. — Austria, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Hungary have come to an agreement by which the letters exchanged between them will pay a postal rate 25 per cent less than those addressed to other foreign countries.
The object of this agreement is to keep closely bound together all the new states which have sprung out of what was once the Austro-Hungarian Empire, with the addition of Italy and Rumania, both of whom have a very considerable interests in common with the signatories of this new postal agreement.
Work Progresses Slowly
Work on the new main street road to the bridge is progressing rather slowly. Contractor Burnstad says, however, that most of the earth work has been finished. There is one large culvert yet to be finished, and the concrete work on the viaduct to be finished. The Haggart Construction Co., which has the contract for paving the road, may be able to begin work on part of the road soon.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS
By Olive Barton Roberts
The magic automobile in which Nancy and Nick were riding to Fairyland was stuck again.
No, it wasn't mud this time—it was fog, thick, white, steamy, wet for that had settled down like a blanket and covered everything.
"I think it's awfully queer," said Nancy. "The sun was out just a little while ago as bright as anything, and now just look at it. I never saw fog come in the daytime before."
"Neither did I," said Nick. "Maybe it's magic fog."
"I bet you that's it!" declared Nancy. "I bet you Light Fingers is trying to steal our automobile again and he's doing something with the weather."
All the Twins could do was to guess, but they were nearer right than they knew. Light Fingers was indeed fooling with the weather—he and Comet-Legs, the other bad little fairy who had crooked legs and rode on a stir.
The two of them, mind you, were up in the sky in Gluster-Gust Land and were monkeying with Mr. Sprinkle-Blow's things. Mr. Sprinkle-Blow, the weatherman, was away. "Well," said Light Fingers glumly, "the rain we sent down didn't do any good. It didn't wreck the Twins at all, ow waa, can we do?"
Suddenly Comet-Legs saw the barrel marked "Denise 109."
"Oh, look here," he cried. "We'll empty this and they can't go anywhere. Then we can't catch them."
And that's where the fog came from.

Traveling Clinic Arrives in City

The traveling clinic sent out by the North Dakota Tuberculosis Association arrived in Bismarck yesterday to close their season's work. They have been in the western counties for the past five months co-operating with the county superintendents in teaching disease prevention among the children and with the local physicians in having the defects corrected so that as many children as possible may be free to gain during the fall and winter.

Many children are handicapped in their school work because of poor eyesight, bad teeth and tonsils and the object of these clinics was to give the necessary surgical attention to those who could not afford to be taken care of in any other way. Nose and throat clinics were held in several counties. The high school buildings were used for hospitals. Class rooms were rendered as aseptic as possible and used for operating rooms. The assembly rooms were used as wards and were equipped with cots, blankets and everything necessary to make an improvised hospital. The local doctors gave their services and co-operated in every way to make the clinics a success.

The clinic has also been making a tuberculosis survey of these counties and their reports show that they have located nearly one hundred cases of positive and suspected cases which need attention. The Sanitarium at Dunsmuir is filled to capacity and these must necessarily combat the disease in their own homes. Professional advice and treatment were given these cases if possible. Dr. A. R. McCradie who has had charge of the clinic left yesterday for Chicago to resume his work.

FANS HOOT UMPIRES WHEN WORLD SERIES GAME IS CALLED BECAUSE OF DARKNESS; HOYT AND SCOTT WILL CONTEND FOR HONORS

Owners of Club Refuse to Take Any Receipts of Second Game so as to Ally Suspicion of Commercialism

STENGEL PULLS UP LAME

Yankees Feel That They Have Better Pitchers in Reserve Than Giants—Ryan and McQuillan in Fine Shape

(By the Associated Press)
New York, Oct. 6.—Giants and Yankees, having attempted to appease thousands of fans who were a whit satisfied when the second world series game was called by umpires in the tenth inning with the score tied, 3 to 3, by giving the entire day's receipts to disabled soldiers and charity, returned today to the business of settling the championship.

The umpires said it was too dark to play when they called the halt, but there were few fans who agreed with them about the conditions of daylight. It may have been dark, maybe Umpire Hildbrand was fooled by Coogan's Bluff, which plays queer tricks with its shadows sometimes. Anyway there was quite a difference of opinion in the matter.

Some three or four thousand of the fans couldn't forget their dissatisfaction. They had watched the Yankees fight a long uphill battle after Irish Meusel's homer in the left field bleachers had counted three runs for the Giants in the very first inning and they wanted to see a finish.

They couldn't understand why this wish should not be granted them. And they fussed.

They railed at the umpires until the umpires found cover, then because there was no one else left or which to vent their feeling they turned to Commissioner Landis, the boss of all major league baseball and they said to him many things. Commissioner Landis didn't have anything to do with calling the game but he made a nice target for their bombardment of criticism. Having talked themselves out, they went home.

Turn Money In.
The owners of the clubs and the players didn't want anybody to think the game had been called deliberately, so that they could play another game and take in more money, so after consultation with Landis they decided they would not keep one red cent. And so the third game with the Giants "at home" again is on today. McGraw's men still have the edge, having won the first game, and today they will play behind pitcher "Deacon John" Scott, who displayed quite some twirling cunning during the latter part of the season. Miller Huggins has selected Waite Hoyt, the youth who caused the Giants no end of worry in the 1921 series in an effort to even the count.

Ryan and McQuillan are in shape and ready to assist Scott, should the Yankee batters take too kindly to his delivery. Carl Mays, with his sub-wisist style, warmed up yesterday when it looked as if Shawkey might not go so well and he is allotted the same job today.

Casey Stengel, the Giant regular centerfielder, probably will be re-placed today by the youthful Cunningham. Stengel after beating out a slow roller to Scott in the second inning of the second game, pulled up lame at second after Snyder had hit safely. McGraw removed him and Cunningham ran. It was reported this morning Stengel may be out for a couple of days.

The newest conception of dope has it that Yankees despite the one game lost, have an equal chance with the Giants to win the series.

The argument for this is that the Giants have used two of their best pitchers and have won one game, while the Yankees have used two of their best pitchers and lost one game. This gives the Yankees with two pitchers rated among the topnotchers, Hey and May, while McQuillan, Scott and Ryan, the remaining regulars on the Giant staff are not regarded so highly.

Today's batting order:
Yankees: Witt, cf; Dugan, 3b; Ruth, rf; Pipp, 1b; R. Meusel, lf; Sehang, c; Waid, 2b; E. Scott, ss; Hoyt or Mays, p.
Giants: Bancroft, ss; Groh, 3b; Frisch, 2b; E. Meusel, lf; Young, rf; Kelly, 1b; Cunningham, cf; Smith, c; Scott, Ryan or McQuillan, p.
Ump: McCormick (N), behind plate; Owens (A), first base; Klem (N), second base; Hildebrand (A), third base.

Game starts 2 p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

AMERICAN MULE KNOWS MORE THAN HORSE

Erivan, Oct. 6.—The American mule is 2.06 times as efficient as the Armenian ox, and 2.68 times as efficient as the Caucasian horse, according to figures reported by the American farming experts in charge of the agricultural program of the Near East in the Caucasus.

These computations are made on a cost-efficiency basis, taking into consideration capital investment, upkeep, length of service, and amount of work accomplished. The mule beats even the tractor in small farming operations, but farms of more than 500 acres bring down tractor costs per unit of work done to a basis below that of the mule.

American mules were introduced here about a year ago. American relief organizations now use 800 of these animals on their various agricultural relief projects. Plans for the breeding of the American type mule on Armenian soil will be shortly carried into effect in northern Armenia.

This photograph or a group in the Giants' clubhouse looks like the last word in strip poker—with Cunningham down to his cap—but it isn't.

And while the Giants are running in a morning pinochle game on one of their home days, the Yanks are offsetting it with a bridge evening in a hotel room in some town they happen to be playing in.

Don't Run to Poker.

Neither team runs to poker. The men crave something brainer and more exciting.

The members of a big league ball team, when on friendly terms among themselves, like the Yanks and the Giants, "hook" pretty much together. They find more fun in their own clubhouse when at home or in the hotel apartment of some one of their number, if they're traveling, than they're able to discover elsewhere.

A bit of lunch, a deck of cards on the table, a "bunch of good kidders" around and everything's set for a happy hour.

Outsiders Are Barred.

Outsiders are barred, so if Wendell wants to be "all dressed up," or if Heinie Groh prefers to appear in his loose-leaf underwear, or if Scotty, of the Yanks, feels like wearing his pajamas, each one of them is perfectly free to consult his own fancy and nobody else's.

Gambling is strictly taboo. The players favor the anti-gambling rule as well as the magnates, for gambling often leads to personal feuds and personal feuds in baseball clubs seldom lead to world series money.

DECLINE IN BRITISH FARMING REPORTED BY INVESTIGATOR

London, Oct. 6.—"Farmers and their laborers everywhere are profoundly dissatisfied with the meager reward accorded to their toil," writes the labor correspondent of the Daily Mail, as a result of a tour of the agricultural districts in England. "It is true that farmers are notorious grumblers," he says, "but there can be no doubt that at the present time they have exceptional, perhaps unprecedented, cause therefore. Through some gross and glaring defect in our distributive methods a monstrous proportion of their laborer's just wage is falling into the pockets of profiteering middlemen, and little or nothing of it goes to the actual workers and producers. The result is that the farmers are unable to afford decent pay to their laborers, and are even compelled in many cases to dispose with paid work altogether. Consequently the state has to maintain thousands of men in idleness at a cost of millions of pounds, while the land is being starved in productivity for lack of labor.

"At the same time, in the vital defensive business of self-feeding, the country is losing all that it gained during the war. Most of the land which was under the plough is returning to permanent pasture. In 1918 we had 12,390,000 acres of arable land; last year we had only 11,809,000. Yet the grass land is 1,401,000 less than 1914, and the total area of both crops and grass has diminished by more than 1,000,000 acres."

45,430 SQUARE MILES COMBED FOR BARBERRY

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 6.—Federal barberry eradication forces in North Dakota have combed 45,430 square miles in their farm to farm search for the outlawed bushes according to George C. Mayoune, state leader of the United States department of agriculture field agents. They have made an intensive inspection of about two-thirds of the state, 25,400 square miles remaining to be covered. Ninety per cent of the towns and villages have been visited and 4,210 square miles of the original survey territory has been resurveyed. Only one patch of wild barberries has been found. On a farm near Sheldon, in Ransom county, 150 asparagus bushes were discovered and removed at the instance of the scouts. Kidder and Sioux were the only counties visited this year that failed to produce barberries as a result of the farm to farm survey. However, bushes were found in Kidder in 1919 and in Sioux in 1921.

Since the original survey was made bushes have been found in Cass, Barnes, Stutsman and Richland counties, indicating the necessity of considerable checking up on previous work. Mr. Mayoune said. He believes many barberries may have been overlooked in the survey of a group of eastern counties in 1919 before the work had been systematized.

ROAD LAWS ARE NECESSARY TO KEEP U. S. AID

Secretary of North Dakota Roads Body Outlines General Policy

ASK A STATE FUND

Executive Committee of Body Called to Meet Here to Adopt Methods

North Dakota must change its present system of state highway building or it will lose millions of dollars of federal aid, J. E. Kaulfuss, recently made secretary of the North Dakota Good Roads Association, declared today in emphasizing the intention of the organization to push to completion its general program in the interests of better highways.

"A law passed by Congress provided that after 1924 no more federal aid could be given for highway building where the amount was matched by counties, "but required that it be matched by a state highway fund," said Mr. Kaulfuss. "This limitation has been extended for a period of two years, but should it again be changed North Dakota would face the loss of a large amount of money."

One of the measures proposed by the good roads association to make possible this retention is a constitutional amendment, providing for a state highway system, a state fund and a commission to direct the work. Should the legislature adopt the amendment and sent it before the people for a vote it could not be voted upon before June, 1924, Mr. Kaulfuss said. For this reason it is the present plan to push the amendment in the legislature.

The United States government has paid to the state of North Dakota, exactly $2,804,447.54 which has been spent in road building and which money has been matched by the counties, the secretary said. Most of this was spent in 1920 and 1921.

"If the state is to continue to receive federal aid there must be some method similar to that we propose, and there must be united support in the state for it," Mr. Kaulfuss emphasized.

The legislative program of the roads body in general provides in addition to the amendment for a highway commission with a full and complete control over the state highways, the creation of a state fund and the starting anew of the state highway system building. Counties would be reimbursed with money already spent on federal aid roads under the plan, and a highway fund obtained by a slight increase in the motor vehicle tax.

A meeting of the executive committee of the good roads association has been called for October 9 in Bismarck, at which times methods to be adopted in putting the general program in effect will be considered. President I. J. Moe of Valley City, and former Lieutenant Governor A. T. Kraabel of Clifford, chairman of the legislative committee, will arrive here Monday. Other directors, F. W. Mevi of Mandan, Ernest Bylin of Toga and Peter Barringer, will participate in the conference.

Strikers Invoke Federal Law to Aid Walkout

Washington, Oct. 6.—Attorney General Daugherty has been asked by navigation bureau officials for an opinion to clear up an apparent conflict in navigation laws developing as a result of the vesselmen's strike on the Great Lakes.

The advice of the justice department was sought after K. M. Nolan, secretary of the striking union, had asked Secretary Daugherty to prevent lake boats from leaving port without 65 per cent of able-bodied seamen in the crews as required by the seamen's act. Navigation bureau officials previously had invoked revised statutes which they said permitted this quota to be reduced in time of emergency.

Pending a decision Commissioner of Navigation Carson has instructed port authorities on the lakes to clear vessels regardless of the 65 per cent requirement, if their masters affirm that they can proceed safely, but has held also that each vessel so cleared must submit to a fine of $500. These fines will be remitted if it finally is held that the seamen's law requirement can be suspended legally.
